

Students: Frequently Asked Questions about the Panorama Survey

1. What is the Panorama Student Survey, and why is it important?
  - The survey asks questions that provide information on how you are learning to interact with others, how you feel at school, and how happy you are with your school. The district has a goal that all students will feel loved, challenged, and prepared for life after high school. Schools and the district can act on these results to make progress toward that goal.
2. How can I take the Panorama Student survey?
  - The student survey will be available in March 2020. A link will be posted on this page when the survey opens!
  - If your school is taking the survey on paper, you will be given a copy to fill out in school. You might also be given time in school to take the survey online.
3. Do my teachers or school know what I said on the survey?
  - No. They can see responses by grade or other categories. For example, they can see how many overall students at your school said they were happy with their school. They can't see how an individual student answered questions.

  - The survey asks these questions so schools and the district can analyze whether results are different for different groups and provide targeted support.
