

Teachers/School Staff: Frequently Asked Questions about the Panorama Survey

- 1. What is the Panorama Teacher and Staff Survey?
 - The survey asks questions that provide information on social and emotional learning (SEL), school climate, school satisfaction, and staff engagement. It asks teachers to reflect on their students' SEL, as well as asking about teachers' engagement with the school and perception of the school environment.
 - The results help school leaders and Central Office staff better understand how to support teachers and staff.
- 2. Where can I get help understanding and using my school's Panorama Survey results?
 - Your school's SEL Lead is a good starting point. The SEL Specialist for your cluster will also be able to help.
 - If you have access to the Panorama portal as an SEL Lead or Survey Liaison, the Playbook section provides hundreds of suggestions from educators and other experts on specific topics, like boosting student engagement or helping students build their perseverance.
- 3. How can I take the Panorama Teacher and Staff Survey?
 - You will get an email from support+dcps@panoramaed.com on March 2 with a link to the survey. That link only works for you, so you shouldn't forward it to anyone.
 - If it is March 3 or later and you haven't received the survey, email panoramasurvey@k12.dc.gov.
- 4. Will my principal or manager know what I said on the survey?
 - No. The data are sent to Panorama Education, a secure third party. Panorama processes results and reports them to DCPS. Your individual staff ID is associated with survey results for processing results by school, department, and subgroup, but that information is not shared with your supervisor or other DCPS staff.
- 5. Who can I contact with questions?
 - Talk to your school's Student/Teacher survey liaison (they will send out an email introducing themselves by mid-February). If your liaison cannot answer your question, email Central Office at panoramasurvey@k12.dc.gov.
